CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Kılıç's practice is trauma care. In the emergency setting, this involves the initial assessment of injured patients, identification of conditions that may require immediate attention, and coordination of further evaluation or treatment with other departments where needed.

Dr. Kılıç also has a particular interest in environmental emergencies, a group of conditions that arise from exposure to outdoor or environmental hazards. Within this area, his listed interests include bee stings and tick bites, which may range from minor local reactions to situations that require closer observation. He also manages drowning emergencies, acute hypoxia, and airway obstruction.
