CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Köstek's practice centers on endocrine surgery, with a particular focus on thyroid surgery. Patients who are considering an operation for a thyroid condition can discuss with him whether surgery is indicated, what the procedure would involve and what the expected course of recovery would be.

He also performs robotic surgery. Robotic techniques are one form of minimally invasive surgery, and whether a robotic approach is suitable depends on the specific condition, the findings on imaging and the patient's overall health. Dr. Köstek reviews these factors with the patient before any decision about the surgical method is made.
