CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Malçok's areas of expertise include prematurity, respiratory distress syndrome (RDS), and neonatal jaundice, including treatment with phototherapy. He provides newborn follow-up and newborn screening tests, and he sees infants with feeding-related concerns such as lactose intolerance in infants and infant colic.

Beyond the newborn period, he offers well-child follow-up, in which growth, development, and preventive care are reviewed at intervals appropriate to the child's age. He also evaluates and manages upper respiratory tract diseases in children, which are among the most common reasons families seek pediatric care.
