CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Sarmaşık's clinical work centers on child and adolescent health from the newborn period onward. A large part of his practice involves upper respiratory tract illnesses in children and the diagnosis and treatment of pediatric infectious diseases.

He also follows children with nutritional disorders, monitoring growth and feeding over time, and provides well-child follow-up and newborn follow-up. Well-child visits allow growth, development and general health to be reviewed at regular intervals, while newborn follow-up focuses on the early weeks of life.
