CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yazıcı's work centers on the assessment and initial management of patients who present to the Emergency Service. Among his stated areas of interest are environmental emergencies, which include medical problems arising from exposure to the surrounding environment, and drowning incidents.

Tick bites are another area of interest. In the emergency setting this involves assessment of the bite site and of the patient's symptoms and history. As with all his emergency work, Dr. Yazıcı's approach is based on clinical examination and the information available at presentation, with further steps decided according to each patient's condition.
