CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Baştuğral's field is the clinical laboratory, and her areas of expertise are clinical laboratory services, medical biochemistry and laboratory-based patient evaluation. Medical biochemistry concerns the measurement and interpretation of chemical and biological markers in blood and other body samples.

Laboratory-based patient evaluation involves considering test results in the context of the individual patient rather than in isolation. Values are read against reference ranges, against the patient's own earlier results where these are available, and alongside the clinical picture described by the referring physician.
