CLINICAL FOCUS

Melek Ateş's areas of expertise include pain rehabilitation and mobility impairment rehabilitation. In pain rehabilitation, physiotherapy is used as one component of a broader plan, with exercise, manual techniques and activity guidance selected according to the source of the pain and the patient's tolerance.

Functional independence training is a further focus of her work. This involves practicing the movements and daily activities that matter most to the individual, such as transfers, walking or self-care, so that patients can regain as much independence as their condition allows.
