CLINICAL FOCUS

A large part of Dr. Necafi's work is routine pediatric follow-up. This includes newborn follow-up in the first weeks of life and well-child follow-up as children grow, with monitoring of childhood nutrition disorders where feeding or weight gain is a concern.

She also diagnoses and treats childhood infectious diseases, including upper respiratory tract illnesses and chickenpox. The approach in each case depends on the child's age, symptoms and history, and treatment decisions are made after a clinical examination and, where appropriate, review of any available test results.
