CLINICAL FOCUS

A substantial part of Dr. Saruç's practice concerns inflammatory bowel disease, including the assessment and treatment of Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis. These are long-term conditions, and treatment planning generally depends on the extent and activity of the disease, previous therapies and the individual patient's history.

He also evaluates and treats liver diseases, including fatty liver disease and liver failure, as well as pancreatic diseases and biliary tract diseases, in line with his subspecialty in the treatment of pancreas, liver and biliary tract diseases. In addition, he sees patients with obesity, an area in which he has also published research.
