CLINICAL FOCUS

A large part of Dr. Saylik's practice involves the evaluation of refractive errors. He sees patients with myopia (nearsightedness), hyperopia (farsightedness) and astigmatism, assessing how each condition affects vision and discussing the correction options that may be suitable.

Dr. Saylik also manages several conditions affecting the eyelids and visual development. Blepharitis, an inflammation of the eyelid margins, is assessed and treated with attention to the patient's symptoms and eye surface findings. Eyelid myokymia, an involuntary twitching of the eyelid, is evaluated to identify possible contributing factors.
