CLINICAL FOCUS

One of Dr. Emi's main areas of interest is the imaging of breast diseases. In this field, imaging is used to help evaluate breast findings and symptoms and to support the diagnostic process. The choice of imaging method, and whether further examinations are appropriate, depends on the individual patient and is decided in the course of clinical assessment.

His second area of interest is multidetector CT colonography, commonly referred to as virtual colonoscopy. This is a CT-based examination of the large bowel. Whether CT colonography is suitable for a particular patient is determined after reviewing the clinical situation and any previous examinations.
