CLINICAL FOCUS

The first area of Dr. Yıldırım's work is advanced life support. This refers to the structured measures used when a patient's breathing or circulation is failing or has stopped, and it forms part of the response to acute, life-threatening deterioration in the hospital setting. Closely connected to this is intensive care treatment, which covers the care of patients admitted to the intensive care unit.

The third area is palliative care. For patients with advanced or life-limiting illness, palliative care concentrates on relieving symptoms, maintaining comfort, and supporting the patient and family through a difficult period. In an intensive care context, this may become relevant when curative or life-prolonging treatment is no longer expected to help, and it is introduced when appropriate, in discussion with the patient's...
