CLINICAL FOCUS

As an anesthesiology and reanimation specialist, Dr. Ibrahimli's work centers on patients who need close monitoring and organ support. Intensive care treatment involves the continuous observation and management of critically ill patients, including support of breathing, circulation, and other vital functions, along with coordination with the surgical and medical teams responsible for the patient's underlying condition.

Her interests also include palliative care, which focuses on relieving symptoms such as pain, breathlessness, and distress in patients with serious or advanced illness, with attention to comfort and quality of life rather than cure alone. In addition, she works in advanced life support, the structured approach to resuscitation and emergency stabilization of patients whose breathing or circulation has failed.
