CLINICAL FOCUS

Necla Aleyna Yiğit works in physical medicine and rehabilitation, an area concerned with restoring function and reducing the impact of physical limitations on daily life. Within this field, she treats patients with movement disorders, which may affect balance, coordination, walking or the control of voluntary movement.

A further area of her work is functional recovery, which refers to helping a patient return to activities that matter to them, such as walking, transferring, self-care or returning to work. The goals of a rehabilitation program are set together with the patient and depend on the underlying diagnosis, the stage of recovery and the patient's general condition.
