CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Taşdemir's practice is the assessment of women with diminished ovarian reserve. This typically involves AMH assessment, a blood test that provides information about the quantity of remaining eggs and is used together with the patient's age, history and other findings to form an overall picture of ovarian function.

Dr. Taşdemir also offers egg freezing within the Vitro Fertilization and Reproductive Medicine Center. Egg freezing may be considered by women who wish to preserve the option of a future pregnancy, and the suitability of the procedure depends on individual factors that are reviewed before any decision is made.
