CLINICAL FOCUS

A large part of Dr. Ölmez's work involves ultrasound, including abdominal ultrasound, thoracic ultrasound and Doppler ultrasound, which is used to examine blood flow in vessels and organs. Ultrasound is a non-invasive method that does not use ionizing radiation, and it is often one of the first imaging steps in the evaluation of a wide range of symptoms.

Breast imaging is another area of focus. Dr. Ölmez performs and interprets mammography and breast ultrasound, both of which are used in the assessment of breast complaints and in the follow-up of previously identified findings. Her head and neck imaging work includes the evaluation of structures in this region using ultrasound, CT and MRI as appropriate.
