CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yıldırım evaluates and treats a range of breast diseases. On the benign side, this includes mastitis, an inflammation of breast tissue that may require medical or, in some cases, surgical management; breast cysts, which are fluid-filled lesions that are often monitored or drained depending on their features; and breast pain, a common complaint that is assessed to identify or exclude an underlying cause.

In the field of breast cancer, Dr. Yıldırım's listed expertise includes hereditary breast cancers, where a family history or a known genetic predisposition may influence how a patient is assessed and followed, and breast cancer during pregnancy, a situation in which the timing and choice of treatment must take both the patient and the pregnancy into account.
