CLINICAL FOCUS

A significant part of Dr. Erdemli's work concerns feeding and digestion in early childhood. She evaluates infant lactose intolerance, infant colic and childhood constipation, conditions in which a careful history of feeding patterns, growth and symptoms is usually the starting point.

Her practice also covers iron deficiency and anemia in children, which may be identified during routine checks or when a child is brought in with a specific concern. In the area of urinary symptoms, she assesses hematuria and urinary incontinence in children, considering which findings warrant further investigation and which can be observed over time. More broadly, Dr.
