CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Şahin's clinical focus is cardiovascular disease. This term covers a range of disorders of the heart and the circulatory system, which can differ considerably in their causes, their course over time and the way they affect daily life.

Because of this variety, cardiological care generally starts with a careful review of the patient's symptoms, medical history and individual risk profile.

When a patient has already undergone tests or treatment, Dr. Şahin reviews the existing reports and imaging before discussing possible next steps. The aim of this review is to establish what is already known, to identify any questions that remain open and to consider which options may be suitable for that particular patient.
