CLINICAL FOCUS

A significant part of Dr. Taş's work addresses periodontal conditions, including gum recession and gum disease, as well as halitosis. She also assesses and treats temporomandibular joint disorders and trismus. Her restorative work covers broken and worn teeth and root canal treatment, and she places dental implants, including cases in which a sinus lift is required to prepare the site.

In aesthetic dentistry, Dr. Taş offers porcelain restorations, laminate veneers, and zirconium restorations, and she evaluates patients with gummy smile concerns. Treatment options are discussed with each patient after a clinical examination, and the suitability of any procedure depends on the individual's oral and general health.
