CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Özçelik's work is centered on the imaging of breast diseases. Breast imaging is used to evaluate symptoms such as a palpable lump, pain, or changes in the breast, to follow up findings from earlier examinations, and to support screening in patients for whom imaging is considered appropriate.

The two imaging methods listed among his areas of expertise are mammography and ultrasonographic imaging. Mammography is an X-ray-based examination of the breast and is commonly used both for screening and for the assessment of symptoms.
