CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Özkalaycı's practice centers on anesthesiology. This includes evaluating a patient's medical history and current condition before a procedure, planning an anesthetic approach that takes existing health problems and medications into account, administering and monitoring anesthesia during the procedure, and following the patient in the early recovery phase.

Perioperative management is a second area of her work. It refers to the coordinated care a patient receives before, during and after a procedure, with attention to factors such as pain control, fluid balance and the monitoring of vital functions. Her third area, reanimation, concerns the support and stabilization of patients whose vital functions are compromised or at risk, for example during or after a procedure.
