CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Orhan's practice is endocrine surgery, including the assessment and treatment of thyroid diseases. He also evaluates and treats patients with pancreatic, liver and biliary tract diseases, an area often referred to as hepatopancreatobiliary surgery.

Whether an operation is appropriate, and which approach is suitable, depends on the individual diagnosis, the findings of the clinical examination and the patient's general health. Treatment decisions are therefore made after a review of the patient's history, existing results and, where necessary, further tests.
