CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Özen's clinical work covers child and adolescent health across a range of age groups. In the newborn period, his areas of expertise include newborn follow-up and the assessment and management of newborn jaundice. He also sees infants with colic and supports families through the early months of life.

He diagnoses and treats childhood infectious diseases, including upper respiratory tract infections, which are among the most frequent reasons children are brought for consultation. His expertise also extends to iron deficiency and anemia in children, common digestive complaints such as constipation, and urinary symptoms including...
