CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Tözün evaluates and treats joint diseases of the hip and knee, with a particular focus on osteoarthritis. When a joint has been damaged to the point that pain and loss of function persist despite other measures, he assesses whether joint replacement is an appropriate option for the individual patient.

Robotic surgery forms a second subspecialty area of his practice and is applied within his joint replacement work. Whether a robotic-assisted approach, a conventional technique or a non-surgical path is considered depends on the patient's condition, imaging findings and overall health.
