CLINICAL FOCUS

Colorectal and oncological surgery form a central part of Dr. Atıcı's practice. She treats rectal cancer and rectal polyps, including juvenile rectal polyps, which are found in younger patients. Robotic surgery is among her subspecialties; this is a form of minimally invasive surgery in which the surgeon operates through small incisions using robot-assisted instruments.

Her work also includes the surgical aspects of inflammatory bowel disease. She sees patients with Crohn's disease and ulcerative colitis in whom surgery is being considered, for example when medical treatment no longer controls symptoms or complications develop. Anorectal diseases are a further area of expertise: Dr.
