CLINICAL FOCUS

The core of Senem Azizzade's practice is nutrition and dietetics. She works with patients who need structured dietary guidance, whether as part of managing a health condition or as a means of improving everyday eating habits. Dietary planning is approached on an individual basis, taking into account the patient's history, current health status and personal circumstances, and is adjusted over time as the patient's needs change.

Her subspecialty is obesity treatment. In this area she provides nutritional assessment and dietary support for patients living with excess weight. Nutrition care is one component of obesity management, and the specific approach for any individual depends on that person's clinical situation and the assessment carried out at the first visit.
