CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Göker's work concerns cataracts, in which clouding of the natural lens gradually reduces the clarity of vision. Evaluation typically involves assessing how far the cataract affects daily activities and whether surgery is appropriate at a given stage. Closely related to this are smart lens procedures, in which the natural lens is replaced with an artificial intraocular lens.

Dr. Göker also sees patients with refractive errors, including myopia, hyperopia and astigmatism. These conditions affect how the eye focuses light and are assessed through a detailed measurement of vision and refraction, after which the available options are reviewed with the patient.

INTERNATIONAL PATIENTS

Dr. Göker consults in Turkish and English, and interpreters can be arranged for patients who speak other languages.
