CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Yeşilaras's areas of expertise include trauma, which in the emergency setting means the initial evaluation of injured patients, attention to breathing and circulation, and identification of injuries that need urgent imaging or surgical review. A second focus is environmental emergencies.

Airway obstruction and acute hypoxia from other causes also fall within her expertise. Managing the airway is a central skill of emergency medicine, and it involves recognizing when the passage of air is compromised, relieving the obstruction where possible and securing the airway so that oxygen can be delivered. The list of conditions above is not exhaustive; it reflects the areas named in her professional profile.
