CLINICAL FOCUS

The clinical work described on this profile centers on orthodontics, the branch of dentistry concerned with the position of the teeth and the way the upper and lower teeth meet. Orthodontic assessment is the first step: the teeth, bite and jaw relationship are examined, existing dental records and imaging are reviewed, and the patient's own concerns about function or...

Dental alignment care refers to the follow-up of a patient whose teeth are being moved as part of an orthodontic plan. This typically includes periodic review of progress, adjustment of the plan where needed and attention to the health of the teeth and gums during treatment.
