CLINICAL FOCUS

A central part of Dr. Şen's practice is the longitudinal follow-up of healthy children. This includes newborn follow-up, in which feeding, weight gain and early development are monitored, and well-child follow-up at later ages, where growth, development and general health are reviewed over time.

Dr. Şen evaluates a number of common pediatric conditions. These include childhood constipation, iron deficiency and anemia in children, and upper respiratory tract illnesses, which are among the most frequent reasons for pediatric visits.
