CLINICAL FOCUS

Dr. Tank's clinical work covers both common and less common skin conditions. In the area of inflammatory skin disease, he manages psoriasis, a chronic condition that usually requires ongoing follow-up and adjustment of treatment over time, and Behçet's disease, in which skin and mucosal findings can be an important part of the overall clinical picture.

Infectious skin conditions form another part of his practice, including skin infections and fungal skin infections, where diagnosis is based on clinical examination and, when needed, further testing. Dr. Tank also sees patients with sun-related skin reactions, including sun allergy and sunburn, and advises on protection and care.
